Rappahannock Cellars Launches Dida's Distillery

Dida's Distillery Opens a New Frontier in Virginia Craft Distilling with 100% Grape-Based Spirits

Huntly, VA: Rappahannock Cellars, a renowned Virginia Winery, announced the opening of Dida's Distillery at their Huntly winery & tasting room. With a combined 30 years of grape growing and wine making experience between California and Virginia, Rappahannock Cellars is the first Virginia winery to capitalize on Virginia's booming Craft Distilling Industry by specializing solely in spirits made 100% from premium grape wines produced on site.

Of the expansion into the spirits industry with a sole focus on distilling from grape, Rappahannock Cellars founder John Delmare says, "Grapes have some major advantages over grains – grapes have a lot more flavor and aroma. More flavor and aroma going into the still provides for more flavor and aroma in the final spirit. And not only as brandy: grapes also make for incredibly smooth and flavorful Vodkas and Gins with character you can't get from grains. Making exceptional wines isn't easy, nor is it cheap. And distilling them is much more difficult and complex. But with three decades of winemaking experience behind us, we're crafting world class wines and distilling them into exceptional spirits."

To launch Dida's Distillery (pronounced "did-uh's"), Rappahannock Cellars spent nearly three years planning and navigating the unique challenges of distilling from grape, ranging from permitting, to the unique logistics of wine making, and the timing of it all around one annual harvest where the fresh wine needs to be turned into spirits immediately. The name Dida means "grandfather" in Croatian and is tribute to the family's grandfather who established the family legacy of fruit farming.

Dida's is open for walk-in tastings Friday thru Sunday, 11:30am-5:00pm with its initial lineup of Pressed Vodka, Immature Brandy, and soon to arrive, a barrel finished Pressed Gin. You will have to wait two years for its first barrel aged signature Brandy. For more information and reservations see www.DidasDistillery.com
